

September 11, 2009

Mr. Robert Briggs
Door Components, Inc.
7980 Redwood Avenue
Fontana, CA 92336-1638

SUBJECT: Steel Door Institute Membership

Dear Bob,

On behalf of the Steel Door Institute, I am pleased to welcome Door Components, Inc. Door Components met or surpassed the rigors of the site audit and committed to the industry standards established by SDI when you signed the Code of Regulations.

- Membership in SDI means you have another voice in the industry that promotes your business. You're not alone—we're here supporting you through an award-winning marketing campaign that includes a web site dedicated to promoting steel doors and frames, a print advertising campaign that appears in Architectural Record magazine and archrecord.com online, a booth at the annual AIA convention, and ongoing marketing support. SDI's marketing efforts augment your company's own marketing campaign, resulting in more bang for the buck.
- Membership in SDI gives you access to fellow industry leaders and the shared wisdom of their experiences. SDI is a selective organization that invites only the best companies in the industry to join. Members enjoy the camaraderie and advantages of face-to-face meetings where they can discuss issues and opportunities with fellow members to strengthen all. SDI meetings often include bringing in speakers with expertise on the economy, industry trends, and forecasting, giving you a leg up on the competition. As you know, SDI meetings are integral to the success of the organization, as the Code mandates participation by the company at the majority of the Directors' and Technical Committee's meetings. Technical Committee representatives must be qualified and capable of taking on voluntary assignments.
- Membership in SDI signifies that your company's products meet the industry's highest standards for quality, performance and support. Since its inception in 1954, SDI has invested hundreds of thousands of dollars to create standards for the manufacture and performance of steel doors and frames, and test them to insure members' products meet those standards. Architects and construction specifiers around the country depend on the Fact File when they specify steel doors and frames. As a member of SDI, your company signals its superiority in meeting these specifications.

Bob, we sincerely look forward to your participation in the Steel Door Institute, and know Door Components, Inc.'s membership will only serve to enhance this organization that has lead the industry for nearly 60 years.

Very truly yours,

J. J. Wherry
Managing Director